

Dear Senior Fellows and Friends,

Your unique personalities and active participation supported our speakers and helped hold a collegial learning space for everyone this year. Thank you.

Rather than start with introductions, we'll hang out in 2-person breakout rooms for a few minutes. I'll explain this again before we start. Each person's objective will be to find out something about the other person that can be shared with the group when we come back together. If one of the following discussion starters appeals to you, use it to explain yourself:

- What's something most people don't know about you?
- What's something you miss that has surprised you?
- How are you taking care of yourself these days? Is there anything you want to change?

When we come back together, we'll each report out. Based on what has occurred in other sessions, that will get the stories flowing! If anyone needs something from the group, this will be the time to put it out there. At some point, I'd like to poll for your interest in participating in a flash mentoring session as a mentor or mentee. We will close by wishing each other health, happiness, and prosperity in the new year.

Wear something comfortable – I'm planning to wear my Walmart special Christmas sweater! Bring a snack or dessert and a drink if you wish.
